Shaven for those who love boats AND THOSE WHO WANT TO

Nestled inside a breakwater, with the Intracoastal Waterway in sight, Day Beacon offers vistas that most people only see on postcards. The photography on this website is shot from Day Beacon's private decks and piers. Two bedroom villas, including a deeded deepwater boat slip, start at $224,000 and average $300,000.

Belhaven, North Carolina is an undiscovered paradise for those of us who love beautiful scenery, wonderful people and small town southern charm. Steamed oysters at Georgie's Oyster Bar or organic gourmet at Wine and Words is only a short walk away. The local hardware store sells everything from caviar to hunting boots. The ladies will love shopping at Pink Flamingo and getting a pedicure at Shear Elegance.

Straight across the 'big water' of Pamlico Sound lies Ocracoke Island. Historic Bath and 'Little' Washington are only a short boat ride away. Greenville is 50 miles to our west and the home of East Carolina University. US Airways and United Airlines provide service to the area.

Steal away to a place where the sunrise takes your breath away, sunsets rival Key West and fishing is the way of life. Stripers, Drum, Trout and Flounder are found in abundance.

PRIVATE INVITATION: To visit this exquisite waterfront community call 800-315-3755.

“ Belhaven is on the verge of something great. Interest for commercial and residential development in the area is on the rise. Belhaven is becoming a sought-after getaway for those who love living or vacationing along the water in a small town setting. New commercial development should soon emerge; enhancing retail and restaurant offerings. Building heights are restricted to 40' in Belhaven. This along with other development guidelines, ensures the ambiance and charm of this fine town will always be there. ”
